Neonatal CPR Training Manikin (with CPR monitor)

The manikin is a replica of a full-term neonatal baby with realistic anatomical structure . It comes with soft and elastic skin, which is durable and ideal for repeated training procedures.

Its head, neck and jaw are fully articulated, with a realistic tongue included.

It can support the following functions:

1. Airway Management

- 1) Realistic oral anatomical structures, including oral, nose, tongue, gums, pharynx, larynx, esophagus, epiglottis, trachea;
- 2) Open the airway by head tilting and chin lifting;
- 3) Realistic chest rise can be seen during positive pressure ventilation.

2.CPR Training: comes with an electronic monitor, supports various ventilation methods such as mouth-to-mouth/nose ventilation and bag-valve-mask ventilation, and the tidal volume and compression depth are electronically monitored. Ventilation and chest compression can be trained separately.

- 1) There will be realistic resistance during chest compression training;
- 2) It's durable enough to withstand thousands of chest compression cycles under proper use conditio.

3.Circulation Assessment Manually squeeze the bulb to simulate the arterial pulse, including the right brachial artery, right femoral artery, and umbilical artery, palpable for training in circulation assessment..

*Additional training functions

- 1.Supports oral and nasal tracheal intubation; sputum suction, oxygen inhalation;
- 2.Supports basic nursing operation: bathing, change/wear diaper, cold and heat therapy, washing face, oral cavity nursing and umbilical care, etc.
- 3.Supports venous puncture/infusion: venae temporales superficiales, right arm vein, etc..
